Wednesday, August 12, 2009, by Dakota

WEST LA: Swathed in signs, more new buildings dot the dusty landscape. This is a nine-unit development at 10930 National Blvd. According to Ana Anderson, the real estate agent for the property, the development will be done in a couple of months, and the units--which range from 1,400 square feet to 2,500 square feet---will sell for $630,000-$1.1 million. This project is a stone's throw from the great Tropicana building. [Curbed Staff]

LOS ANGELES: The Urban Land Institute Los Angeles has a new chairman. Say hello to Alex J. Rose, Senior Vice President, Development & Asset Management at Continental Development Corporation, who has succeeds outgoing chairman Wayne Ratkovich. Surely some kegger is planned to welcome Alex, so we'll await our invitation. [Curbed Inbox]
